

ARMISTICE IN STRIKE

UNION PERMITS MEN TO RETURN TO THEIR JOBS

Membership Will Not Be Canceled; Canterbury
Issues Statement

The Timberworkers' union is taking no action to cancel the membership of those who return to work, thereby virtually creating an end to the local lumber strike. Action to this effect was taken by the union at its regular meeting Sunday and was announced in a statement issued today by R. H. Canterbury, international president of the Timberworkers' union.

Canterbury said the action was taken for the best interests of the community. He asserted that strike had not been called off, stating that such action was directly in violation of the American Federation of Labor's eight-hour-day policy. As the situation now exists, he pointed out, it is up to the men to return to work or not, as they themselves may decide.

Canterbury's statement follows: "There seems to be much speculation and misunderstanding of the present status of the existing controversy between the lumber interests of this section and their employees, and of the action taken by the Timberworkers' union at its regular meeting Sunday.

"I would like to make it clear that the strike order has not been rescinded and will not be at any time in the future until the 8-hour day is restored throughout the industry in this section. Workmen and women hold the 8-hour day too sacred to concede a longer work day and can do nothing less than to reiterate their stand for the 8-hour work day.

"There are times, however, when wage workers must bow to circumstances and accept impossible and distasteful conditions for a time, always having in mind the ultimate correction of these ills.

"Realizing there are those who have been driven to accept such conditions here at this time, the timberworkers' organization is taking no action to cancel their memberships and in fact will not do so and the organization is convinced that having been forced through economic necessity to accept other than an 8-hour day will only strengthen the determination of these workers to go to their 8-hour day will ultimately be the result."

NEW CHILOQUIN PLANT

Standard Oil Announces Establishment of Distributing Station

Chiloquin is to have a Standard Oil company warehouse and distributing station, with permanent buildings, trucks and other equipment costing in the aggregate at least $30,000, according to announcement made here today by L. J. Wolfe of this city, assistant special agent for the Standard Oil company.

Wolfe said the decision to install the plant at Chiloquin was made by the board of directors in San Francisco recently, and was recognition of the future of this territory and of Chiloquin. Construction by W. D. Miller of the buildings will be started immediately, he said. The company has acquired land at the rear of the theatre and a private spur has been run in from the Southern Pacific.

The buildings will occupy 15,000 square feet of floor space and two 20,000 gallon tanks will be installed.

"Not only is there a large lumber industry in the Chiloquin region," said Wolfe, "but the agricultural outlook, particularly around Fort Klamath, is very good. While the Standard is one of the most progressive concerns in the world, it is also exceedingly cautious in establishing distributing stations, and this move comes only after a most exhaustive examination of the Chiloquin situation, both as to the present and the future."

GAME LAWS CHANGED

Deer Season Extended 10 Days; Season Uniform Throughout State

Changes in the state game laws, adopted at a recent meeting of the state game commission, were announced here today by L. J. Bean, secretary of the Klamath Sportsmen's association, as follows: deer season, from September 1—October 31 to August 20—October 31, giving an extension of 10 days; quail and Chinese pheasants, from October 1—October 19 to October 15—October 31; ruffed grouse or native pheasants, from September 1—October 31 to August 20 to September 20.

These seasons are effective in all sections of the state and make the game laws uniform in all counties. As no open season has been declared on Chinese pheasants in this county, the change is not effective here. In explaining the reason for the changes, State Game Warden Burdett said in a letter to Bean that the matter was given serious consideration for practically a year and that an attempt was made to strike an average which would be agreeable to the greatest number of sportsmen throughout the state, and at the same time be of the greatest advantage to our game interests. He said he believed the changes to be a step forward in game protection and one which, when tried out, will meet with the hearty approval of all sportsmen in every section of the state.

The commission will leave Portland July 4 for eastern Oregon, later swinging down through southern Oregon and arriving in Klamath Falls about July 10. The sportsmen's association will call a meeting in the near future to plan entertainment for the visitors, Bean said.
